'We are the abandoned of the Church:' Parish

Philadelphia. As papal visit nears, Latino Catholics still struggle with lost historic church, 'La Milagrosa.'

Just blocks away from the Cathedral Basilica where first Latino Pope Francis will visit during the World Meeting of Families in September, the oldest Latino Catholic church in Philadelphia, La Milagrosa at 19th and Spring Garden, is closed and slated for development into housing.

"This year when the pope is coming — it's our only chance to go out and say, 'Please help us,'" said Miguel Ortiz, a former La Milagrosa member.

La Milagrosa opened in 1912. It was owned by the Vincentian Fathers, a Catholic society that closed and sold the church in 2013.

"The Archdiocese never owned the building and could not prevent its sale," said an Archdiocese of Philadelphia spokesman. "It could not afford to purchase the building."

But for those with a deep connection to La Milagrosa, the loss of their church is still keenly felt.

"I'm hearing from some people that they just don't attend Mass anymore," Ortiz said. "We are the abandoned of the church."

Ortiz and his family now go from church to church every Sunday, looking for a new place to worship. But nothing can replace La Milagrosa, they say.

"This," said Ortiz' 10-year-old daughter, Celeste, "was our home."

Musician dies in hiking accident

Jason Parish / VALENTINE GORSKI

Jason Parish, 36, a musician active in the Philadelphia folk music scene, passed away over the weekend while hiking on the Appalachian Trail in Maryland.

He was in an overnight shelter on Sunday morning when a dead tree fell on it due to heavy winds, according to the National Park Service.

"All his friends are completely in shock right now," said Ernie Tokay, who helped Parish record his new album "A Mountain and a Hill," released in January. "We're all gonna miss him."

Parish, a Delaware native, was the son of a mechanic and a classical musician who studied classical music and jazz before teaching himself the guitar and becoming a

Firefighters electrocuted by ladder while on duty

Two firefighters required medical attention after an aluminum ladder they were pulling down came in contact with electrical wires on Monday morning.

The firefighters had just finished bringing a house fire on the 2400 block of West Norris Street in North Philly under control, reports say.

They were bringing down the 35-foot extension ladder when it touched the high-voltage line.

The firefighters were rushed to Temple University Hospital in stable condition. METRO

Teacher arrested for illegal pictures of students

South Jersey teacher Adam Mayr, 37, has been charged with invasion of privacy and endangering the welfare of a child, according to prosecutors.

Mayr is accused of creating "images of private areas of students at the Gloucester County Institute of College," prosecutors say. No further details about the nature of Mayr's alleged misconduct was reported, but all the acts occurred in the school, prosecutors said.

According to the Gloucester County Prosecutor's Office, the activities of Mayr, an English teacher at Gloucester County Institute of College (GCIT), came to the attention of the school on March 12.

Mayr, of Washington Township, was arrested March 13 and is in Salem County jail. His bail was set at $300,000.

Authorities are now working with the school to find all the students whose privacy may have been violated. METRO

Florida man pleads guilty to running prostitution ring

Network. Khasim Stephenson ran a prostitution ring that stretched from North Carolina to Pennsylvania.

A Florida man pleaded guilty in federal court in Philadelphia to running an interstate prostitution ring that sent women to Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and the Best Western Hotel in King of Prussia.

In a nearly 30-page indictment against Khasim Stephenson, 40, prosecutors detail Stephenson's lengthy business network, which involved advertising on websites, directing prostitutes where to work, and how to deposit money into his bank account.

Prosecutors say Stephenson used cash the women earned to buy several luxury vehicles, including an $81,450 BMW s600 and a $170,000 Lamborghini Gallardo.

Stephenson has a lengthy and colorful criminal history.

At the time of his 2014 arrest, Stephenson was on probation for shooting at police officers with fireworks. Police in Stephenson's hometown of Orlando, Florida say that in the early morning hours of July 5, 2012, they tried to arrest Stephenson for lighting fireworks in a bar parking lot. While in custody, Stephenson shot at three bicycle officers with more fireworks. He pleaded no contest to aggravated assault in that case.

How he spent it

Federal prosecutors say Stephenson made a $117,000 cash deposit on a new Lamborghini with money orders from at least 10 different bank accounts.

City's 'last movie palace' to be reborn

The historic Boyd Theater at 19th and Chestnut is being partly torn down. The theater, built in 1928, closed in 2002. Pearl Properties bought the theater in October 2014 and struck a deal to preserve the foyer, facade and lobby — but the grand auditorium will be demolished. Wanted: Free horses

If anyone has any spare horses lying around, state troopers in Pennsylvania might be able to take them off your hands.

The Pennsylvania State Police is looking for donations of horses to assist in searches, crowd control and operations in remote areas. Eligible equines be between 5 and 15 years old, have a quiet disposition and stand between 5-feet, 4-inches and 6-feet at the shoulder.

Thoroughbreds need not apply — they tend to be too hot-blooded, state police say. METRO

Three things you need to know

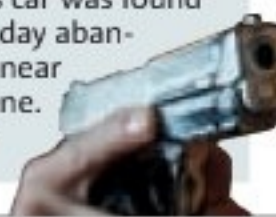

LAPD officer sought for questioning in fatal shooting

A rookie Los Angeles police officer was being sought on Monday as a person of interest in the fatal Southern California shooting of another man in the bar district in Pomona, local authorities said.

Henry Solis was off-duty on Friday morning when gunfire killed 23-year-old Salome Rodriguez, Jr. in Pomona, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, the Pomona Police Department said in a statement on Sunday.

A 27-year-old probationary officer, Solis later failed to show up for work on Saturday following the shooting, and his car was found on Sunday abandoned near the scene.

Ebola patient now in 'critical' condition in US

The condition of the American Ebola patient being treated at the U.S. National Institutes of Health in Maryland has worsened from serious to critical, NIH said in a statement on Monday.

The patient, a health care worker, was evacuated from West Africa and arrived at the NIH clinical center on Friday. The patient, described as a clinician working with Partners In Health at the medical aid group's Sierra Leone Ebola center, has not been further identified.

Partners in Health said in a statement that 10 of its clinicians in Sierra Leone "came to the aid of their ailing colleague" and were subsequently identified as contacts of the patient now being treated at NIH. REUTERS

Durst says he 'killed them all' in HBO film

New York real-estate heir Robert Durst, who was arrested over the weekend in the slaying of a friend and whose wife disappeared in 1982, says he "killed them all" in the final installment of an HBO film that aired Sunday night.

Near the end of the sixth episode of the series, Durst, in a bathroom and apparently unaware that his microphone was recording, whispers, "What the hell did I do? Killed them all, of course."

Durst was arrested in New Orleans on March 14 in connection with the execution-style death in Los Angeles of his confidante, Susan Berman, who was killed 14 years ago.

CHAPTER TWO NATALIE

Mr. Baker and I weed for a few hours until it's time for me to leave. He has obviously put some money into my backpack because it's unzipped when I pick it up. It's always a twenty, wrapped in an article about my school, or an honor roll list with my name on it. I'm not sure if it's him or his wife who puts them in my bag. Regardless, it's pretty cool. Originally it was my parents' idea for me to help out Mr. Baker. But now I actually kind of enjoy it. He used to be a lot grumpier. But now that I can tell the difference between daffodils and weeds, we're doing OK. I leave and head to Diaz Café to meet my friend Lizzie. It's crowded, but we find a table and order two milkshakes and a large side of fries. We're going to see a movie, so we eat quickly and leave the twenty behind. It's a big tip, but we like Ms. Diaz and besides, rumor has it, bigger tips mean bigger portions.

Boston. Witnesses recall accused bomber's fight with police, arrest

The accused Boston Marathon bombers tossed bombs and fired a pistol at police in their final hours on the run before a dazed and wounded Dzhokhar Tsarnaev was found hiding in a dry-docked boat and arrested, witnesses testified on Monday.

Police and civilian witnesses at his trial on Monday recalled the ferocity of that final gunfight, when Tsarnaev and his older brother used a bomb similar to the ones made from pressure cookers they set off at the race.

Defense attorneys opened his case earlier this month by admitting the younger Tsarnaev committed all the crimes with which he is charged, but attempted to paint his 26-year-old brother, Tamerlan, as the driving force behind the attacks.

Shifting some of the responsibility to Tamerlan, who died after Dzhokhar ran him over at the end of the gunfight, could convince the jury to sentence the surviving brother to life in prison without possibility of parole rather than death, defense attorneys contend.

One man who lived on the block where the Tsarnaevs fought with police testified that he was sleeping in the living room of his home with his 3-week-old son when he was awakened by gunshots.

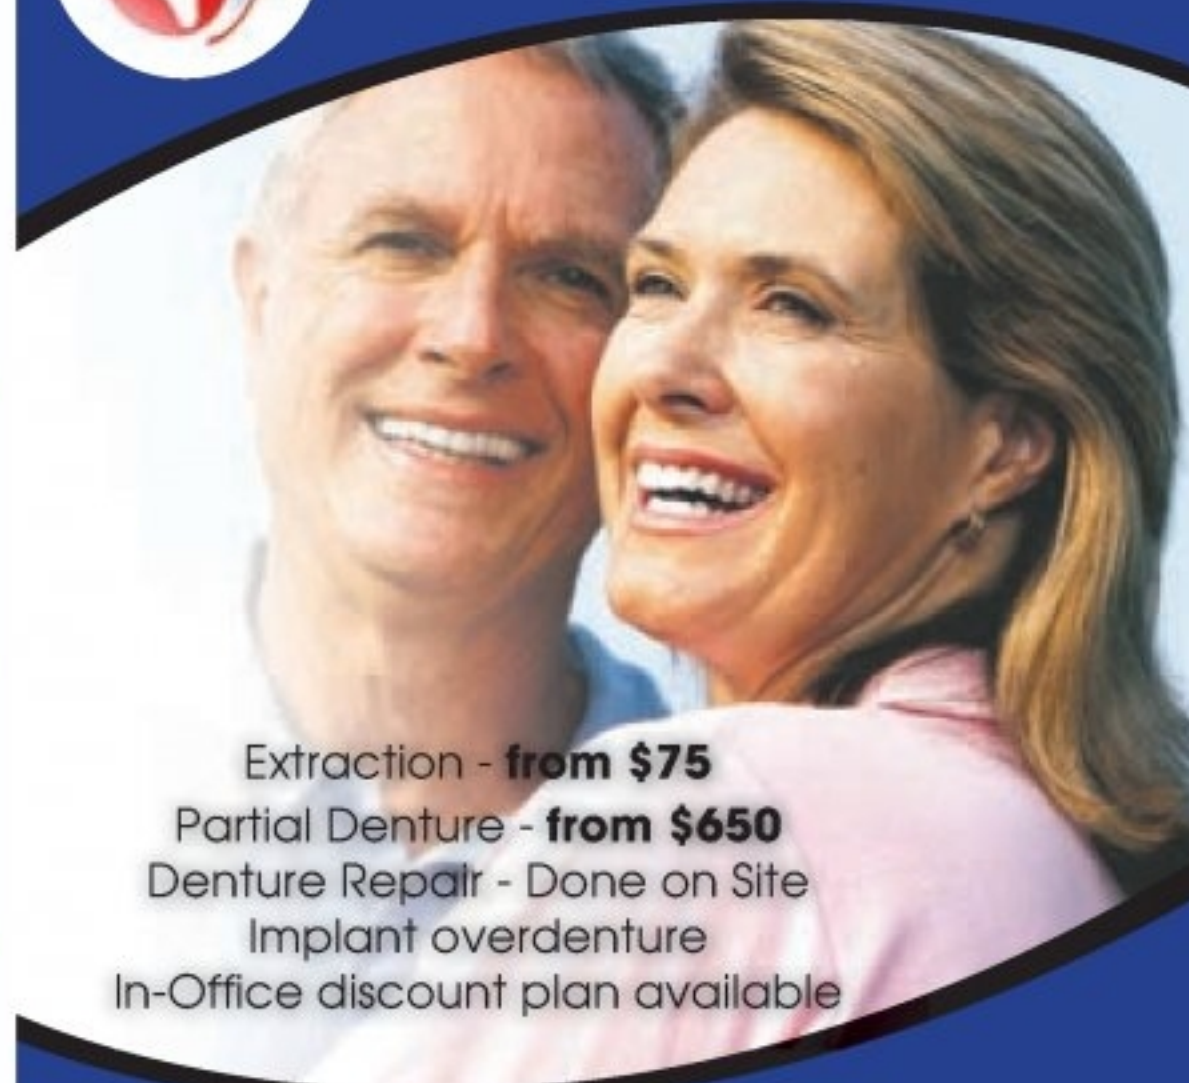

Quoted

"I didn't look for long. I saw that it was pretty serious and I wanted to get my kid back upstairs to the back of his house." Foley

"I looked outside and I could see guns firing," the man, James Foley, testified at U.S. District Court in Boston. REUTERS

U.S. stocks on the rise

Wall Street.
Investors are reassured by the euro's recovery against the dollar.

U.S. stocks traded yesterday and the benchmark S&P 500 rebounded after three weeks of losses as the euro strengthened against the dollar, easing some concerns over the impact of a robust greenback on corporate earnings.

The S&P 500 has fallen 2.7 percent in the last three weeks, including a 0.9 percent drop last week. The Dow lost 0.6 percent last week while the Nasdaq declined 1.1 percent.

A recovery in the euro was reassuring investors, says Nick Colas, chief market strategist at brokerage Convergenx, in New York, as a rapidly rising U.S. dollar would pressure U.S. corporate earnings, especially for multinationals.

"It seems like the currency markets are helping

3 Books to help you revamp your finances

These new releases will get you back on track.

EMILY LAURENCE

'Rich Bitch'

By Nicole Lapin

Read if:

You're sick of hearing that you need to give up $4 lattes to get rich.

The low-

down: If you're in your 20s and living paycheck to paycheck, occasionally calling up mom and dad for money, this book is for you. Financial expert Nicole Lapin lays out a 12-step program for getting your life together, including how to create a realistic spending plan, manage your debt and understanding saving and investing.

'The Thin Green Line'

By Paul Sullivan

Read if:

All you want is to stop worrying about money.

The low-

down: In this book, New York Times columnist Paul Sullivan explains the concept of the thin green line, a simple metric people can use to measure their financial stability. He shows how to get on the right side of the line by outlining three ways to save, how to enjoy life without going broke, how to give to charity and how to make savvy financial decisions.

'The Dollar Code'

By Jason R. Hastie

Read if:

You have no idea where your money is going.

The low-

down: This book all comes down to one concept: finding the average from your monthly income and total bills and using that as the guide to how much money you can spend each day. It's all about that one number. So if you don't want anything complicated and tracking your spending has never worked for you, this is your best bet.

Justin Bieber can't stop celebrating his birthday

Unsurprisingly, Biebs is an "Entourage" fan. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The whole birthday concept seems to be a tough one for Justin Bieber to grasp — at least the part about it being one day, that is. Bieber, who turned 21 on March 1, followed up the recent taping of his Comedy Central roast with another birthday party, this time in Las Vegas. "He was in great spirits," a source tells E! News. The Omnia, the club that threw the lavish bash, gave him a cake shaped like the Lincoln Continental from "Entourage."

Kanye West tweets out sexy pictures of Kim Kardashian

@KANYEWEST/INSTAGRAM

Kanye West, never one to let a Monday pass by as any ol' start to the week, has sent out a series of tweets featuring semi-nude pictures of his wife, Kim Kardashian. The pictures appear to be from a photo shoot and were accompanied with messages like "SWISH!!!!"

and "IM SO LUCKY." While other husbands might send their wives flowers to celebrate their accomplishments, this was apparently West's way of showing the world how proud he is of his wife, who has reached 30 million Twitter followers. MATT LEE

Jennifer Aniston's unexpected visitor

Jennifer Aniston got some unsolicited gardening recently when a drunk driver reportedly jumped the curb and landed on her lawn, taking out some plants along the way, according to TMZ. It's unclear whether Aniston or fiancé Justin Theroux were home, but her security guard called the cops, who busted the driver after he failed a sobriety test. Cue "Friends" theme song joke about being stuck in second gear.

Guest stars. We picked the five people we want to see on 'Empire'

"Empire," now almost at the end of its first season, has gone through a meteoric rise, and it's attracting some impressive guest stars. Mary J. Blige, Courtney Love and Jennifer Hudson have all stopped by, and creator Lee Daniels has announced that Oprah and Common will appear next season. We brainstormed a few more potential guest stars for the show.

The two-hour season finale of "Empire" airs Wednesday on Fox at 8 p.m. / CHUCK HODGES, FOX

1 Any of the ladies from "20 Feet from Stardom." If you haven't seen this doc about the women who performed some of the most iconic backing vocals on rock songs in the '60s and '70s, you should. We think any of them would work on "Empire," perhaps as part of an attempt by Lucious to cement his legacy as a music producer.

2 Janelle Monae. Can Janelle Monae act? Who knows? We picture her as an up and coming star who clashes with Lucious and is only willing to be managed by Cookie (everyone on the show should insist on being managed by Cookie).

3 Jamie Foxx. After "Annie" didn't exactly set the world on fire this winter, we think Foxx might be ready for a visit to the small screen. Maybe he could play the cop who finally gets some real dirt on Lucious.

4 Kanye West. It's a long shot, but he's already been referenced as a real person in the world of "Empire," so he could play himself. Maybe he could mentor Hakeem?

5 Jennifer Lopez. Lopez could take a break from her "American Idol" judging duties and visit. Maybe she could be a prison pal of Cookie's. We're due to meet some of the people she met in her years behind bars. LISA WEIDENFELD

TELEVISION 14

'Community' returns for another round

Interview. The show has faced the threat of cancellation many times, but a jump to Yahoo saved it once more.

The world of TV is littered with examples of much-loved but underwatched shows that aired for a season and disappeared, but few have had as strange a life as "Community," the pop culture-obsessed show about a group of misfits at a community college. Perpetually near cancellation, the show has seen the departure of various cast members, and the firing and rehiring of creator Dan Harmon. After NBC finally pulled the plug, an unexpected savior popped up in the form of Yahoo, and the show returns today with new episodes.

Series star Gillian Jacobs (Britta) says she's not too worried about the change in venue. "Post-'House of Cards,' you'd be silly to be nervous, especially at a place like Yahoo, that has the resources to really support the show," she says. "You look at the other programming they're doing — they have good taste! I mean, they liked us, so they have great taste."

The show will be introducing two new characters, played by

The first two episodes of "Community" premiered at 12:01 a.m. PST last night. You may also have seen Jacobs as Mimi-Rose on this season of "Girls."

Paget Brewster and Keith David. "Paget's character is very much in charge of keeping us in line, and we are an unruly crowd, so I think that's a potential source of conflict. Keith's character maybe intimidates Britta slightly," says Jacobs.

The return of the show means viewers get to see all kinds of new journeys for the characters, and meet Britta's parents, who are played by Martin Mull and Leslie Ann Warren (or Colonel Mustard and Miss Scarlet, if you're "Clue" fans).

"As a 'Clue' fan, I was really excited," says Jacobs of the casting. "We're starting to see a little bit more of the characters' outside lives, help inform who they are, why they are, what the hell happened to Britta to make her Britta."

She's referring, of course, to the characters' tendency to call her "the worst" for her buzzkill tendencies. Would she ever want them to stop calling her that?

"No, I'm branded with that! It's a point of pride now, to be the worst. No, that's like a tattoo, I can't."

Ups and downs

Last minute reprieve

"Emotional roller coaster" might be the best way to describe working on "Community," Jacobs says she hoped NBC might bring the show back because "we had come so close and cheated death so many times on NBC." When they didn't, "A lot of people told me 'Community is dead,' you must move on, so, trying to be an emotionally healthy person, I moved on, and then at the very last minute, this deal came through."

Birthday party politics: Should every kid get an invite?

Mommyhood Musings

YESENIA ALMONTE

Twitter and Instagram:
@yeseniaalmonite

Metro's new parenting blogger will be sharing her parenting triumphs and fails — and taking you along for the ride. Yesenia Almonte is a born and bred New Yorker who lives in Brooklyn with her husband and two sons, Hudson, 3, and Crosby, 10 months.

When your child doesn't get a party invite, your heart aches for them. / PROVIDED

Surprise! That's exactly what I felt this past week-end when my 3-year-old, Hudson, and I walked into our building's playroom (which is a daily stop for the parents who live in the building) and stumbled upon a young child's birthday party. A child, who coincidentally, plays with my son quite often in that very same play room but a party that, surprisingly (no pun intended!) he was not invited to.

My son immediately yelled "Birthday Party!" because like all kids, he loves a birthday party.

Once the birthday girl and my son fixed eyes on each other they immediately ran towards the other and started to play (as I said, they are playroom buddies). I, on the other hand, felt awkward around all the parents who were invited to the party and kept introducing themselves to me as though I were also one of the guests.

As you can imagine, the birthday girl's dad (and my neighbor) was pretty embarrassed at this turn of events and immediately began offering up excuses, nervously saying that he didn't have my email, otherwise he would've invited us, yadda, yadda, yadda. Dude, relax, you are not obligated to invite us to your daughter's birthday party. Yes, it was slightly odd, but I thought he should simply acknowledge it and move on. No need to have a pity party (again

For exclusive commentary, visit with the puns!), as we have plenty of birthdays to attend on our calendar. Nevertheless, I wanted out of this awkward situation, but my son was having too much fun.
Metro.us/blogs.

I know this won't be the first or last time something like this happens, and that my son won't always be oblivious to the circumstances, but I decided to stay and shake it off. Seeing past these uncomfortable moments and overcoming the insecurities that manifest themselves as a result is something I will teach my son to do as he gets older, but for this one time, I simply let my little buddy enjoy playing with his friend at her birthday party.

Binding wounds doesn't mean burying reality

Re: 'President not doing Ferguson any favors' (Metro, March 17) The president and the attorney general didn't create the emails and other documented evidence of racism in that police department. Nor did they create Ferguson's long — again, well documented — history of hostility to the black community. Furthermore, the problems police encounter in the media and among civil rights groups have an origin in people like Mr. Giarratani, police and district attorneys who simply refuse to criticize or prosecute the most egregious officer misconduct. Very simply, good cops, who are the vast majority, and prosecutors have got to stop protecting bad cops.
THOMAS WILSON, VIA EMAIL

Re: 'President not doing Ferguson any favors' (Metro, March 17) Letter writer Sal Giarratani seems to have missed the part of the Ferguson story about the unfair and illegal targeting of African-Americans by both the police and the court system, as well as the exploitation of that minority community to bolster the coffers of the city. The fact, yes, FACT, that African-Americans have been the target of "racist-like practices," and the long overdue recognition of this pattern, by not only Ferguson, but numerous other communities across the country, has been completely overlooked by Mr. Giarratani.

While African-Americans have been aware of these practices for decades, this is the first time in my life that I have ever seen it officially recognized.

Yes, America needs to bind up its wounds, and do everything that we can to end these unfair practices, NOT just continue to criticize the victims.

ARE YOU A BELIEVER IN CHIP? FIND OUT HERE

Catch your breath yet? The Eagles haven't made a blockbuster move in four days. It's difficult to find perspective when your football world is spinning at 500 mph. But now, perhaps, we can assess exactly where Big Balls Chip has left our favorite franchise.

Will Kelly's March Madness lead to a title, or abject failure? Is there an actual plan behind this burning the village in order to save it? The result lies in the answers to these questions:

1. Will Sam Bradford be better than Nick Foles?

I'm dubious. But Chip believes Bradford will flourish in this offense — and is betting that the oft-injured Okie can avoid a third ACL tear. Show of hands, if you believe Bradford still lives up to promise of a No. 1 overall pick.

2. Can DeMarco Murray produce another All-Pro season?

He had 497 touches last year, and you've heard the stats on runners taking such abuse depreciating like an old Yugo. Murray won't reach that workload working with Ryan Mathews and Darren Sproles, but are we sure the Cowboys didn't ruin him?

3. Is there a lead receiver?

Jeremy Maclin is gone and Riley Cooper is inexplicably still here. I'm not buying that Josh Huff's the guy. Is a potential game changer (DeVante Parker, Devin Smith) coming in the draft?

4. Will the offensive line be sturdy?

It was the backbone of 2013, the broken spine of 2014. Todd Herremans is gone, rumor has Evan Mathis headed for the Patriots. Jason Peters looked winded at the end of last season. Nothing works without the big boys.

5. Are the secondary changes enough?

Good riddance to Bradley Fletcher, Nate Allen and "Sconce" Williams. A hearty welcome to Byron Maxwell. Full trust in Malcolm Jenkins. Is some combo of Walter Thurmond, Brandon Boykin and Nolan Carroll enough at the other two spots?

There's got to be one more substantial pickup coming, right?

6. Can all this upheaval work?

Eagles fans only need to go back four years for the cautionary tale of Dream Team, which suggested flipping personnel like some drunken fantasy player can backfire. There's no set-in-stone way to build a champion, but Kelly's sure playing outside the tried-and-true here. Will a bunch of guys wearing "My Name Is..." name tags on Day 1 end up gelling?

7. Is Chip Kelly sane?

Really. I spoke with dozens of fans last week who called him a madman who'd lost his bleepin' mind. Can you faithfully cross your heart now and repeat the oath, "In Chip I trust?"

So that's seven questions — scratching the surface, really. If you honestly answered "yes" to, let's say, five of them, well, you're a true believer who can start making plans to visit Super Bowl 50 in Santa Clara. If you're down at two or three, you're among the old-head Philly Fatalists I speak with on the radio each week.

Me? I'm a "yes" on four (2, 4, 5 and 7), which sounds a lot like 10-6 again.

That could all change as things move on, of course. We'll keep checking back.

Sports news that you need to know

Is it 'Tebow Time' in Philly?

If Eagles head coach Chip Kelly can get Tim Tebow's NFL career back on track, then he truly is the quarterback whisperer.

The former Heisman Trophy winner is "working out" for the Eagles, according to ESPN. Tebow hasn't thrown a pass in the NFL since the 2012 season when he was with the Jets. His only successful season in the league came in 2011 when he was in Denver. Tebow threw 12 touchdowns with six interceptions that season and led the Broncos to a playoff win over the Steelers. Despite several notable victories in 2011, Tebow only managed a 72.9 passer rating that season, however.

The Eagles acquired quarterback Sam Bradford from the Rams last week and re-signed Mark Sanchez earlier this off-season. Tebow was Sanchez's backup in New York in 2012. MATT BURKE

Lee's season in jeopardy

The Phillies stopped short of saying that Cliff Lee will miss the 2015 season due to a lingering right forearm strain, but the team did place the lefty on the 60-day disabled list Monday.

"While surgery has now been recommended, it would effectively put an end to his 2015 season as the rehabilitation from the surgery would run through the end of the season," a statement from the Phillies read. "As a result, the Phillies and Cliff have mutually decided to once again rehabilitate the injury non-operatively, with the hope that Cliff might be able to return to pitch during the 2015 season."
